

Chapter 5 Animal Behavior

Across

1. is an area that is occupied and defended by an animal or group of animals.
4. is a group of closely related animals of the same species that work together in a highly organized way.
9. picks up radio signal from the transmitter on an animals neck, wing, or fin, to keep track of the animal.
12. is the process that leads to change in behavior base on practice or experience.
13. is a signal that causes an organism to react in some way.

Down

2. a chemical released by one animal that affects the behavior of another animals of the same species.
3. is behavior in which males and females of the same species prepare for mating
5. is the state of greatly reduced body activity that occurs during the winter when food is scarce.
6. is a threatening behavior that one animal uses to gain control over another.
7. all the actions animals performs
8. is a learned behavior.
10. is a instrument in orbit thousands of miles above Earth to keep track of animals.
11. is the regular, seasonal journey of an animal from one place to another and back again.