

Name: _____ Date: _____ Period: _____

Parts of a Theater

Across

3. The middle of the playing area
 7. Short, wide drapes used to conceal lighting instruments and fly space
 8. The area in the theater where the audience sits
 10. The stage area on the right (from the actor's perspective)
 13. A type of performance space that was not originally designed for theatrical performance
 16. A type of stage that can be rearranged to become any of the other types of stage
 18. The stage area on the left (from the actor's perspective)
 20. The steelwork above the stage from which lighting instruments and draperies are hung

21. A collaborative art form involving a performance or presentation of a work of art for an audience
 22. A type of stage where the audience sits on only one side of the stage
 23. The area of the stage behind the proscenium and drapery that is hidden from the audience
 24. The area between the stage and the audience where the orchestra plays
Down

1. The stage area farthest from the audience
 2. The areas immediately offstage to the left and right of the stage
 4. A type of stage where the audience sits on three sides of the stage
 5. A type of stage where the audience sits on all sides of the stage

6. The stage area closest to the audience
 9. The backstage area where the actors wait during performances
 11. This type of stage was slanted down towards the audience to aid visibility
 12. Room where the light board operator, sound board operator, and stage manager run the show
 14. Platforms and walkways above the stage used by technicians to adjust and repair instruments
 15. Narrow, vertical curtains used to mask the wings and sides of the stage
 17. The frontmost part of a proscenium stage, in front of the arch and the grand drape
 19. A building in which performances are given