

The Immune System CH 28

Across

1. The introduction of immunity by infection or with a vaccine is called
6. A hypersensitivity to a normally harmless substance is called an
13. What structures are foreign substances that invade the body
14. This organ is located in the upper left quadrant of the abdomen
15. A substance capable of causing an allergic reaction is called

Down

2. Which of the following is the usual treatment for systemic lupus erythematosus
3. An autoimmune viral disease that is believed to be the cause of infectious mononucleosis is
4. An autoimmune disorder in which the myelin sheath of nerves is attacked is
5. Which immune system organ is found in the pharynx
7. Immunity conferred to a breastfeeding infant by his mother is

8. These cells seek out and destroy harmful organisms
9. This gland is located posterior to the sternum, in the anterior mediastinum
10. This system consists of tissues, organs, and physiology processes that identify abnormal cells and foreign substances
11. An extreme, often life-threatening, response to an antigen is called
12. Genes that control cell growth