

Nonfiction Text Features

Across

2. a drawing intended to explain how something work
7. a visual representation of data
8. A visual representation of events in history displayed in chronological order
9. a line of text serving to indicate what the passage below it is about
11. they help to understand where places are located
13. visual representations showing how 2 or more sets are related to each othe
14. the name of a book or article; gives the reader an idea about what they will read
15. Pages at the back of the book that tell where to find important topics in the book
16. Text that is heavier and darker than the rest of the text

Down

1. A list of chapters and their page numbers.
3. A picture that emphasizes key points and adds interest
4. A list of facts or numbers arranged in in rows and columns
5. Words that are slanted to the right. It calls attention to important words or terms
6. an alphabetical list of terms and definitions usually found at the end of the book
10. A secondary heading added underneath a subject heading.
12. word close to photographs, illustration, or charts, explaining what they are