Name: _____ Date: _____

The Sociology of Crime

Across

4. Our everyday life is subject to rules, either informal or formal

6. A famous sub-cultural theorist

10. an example of a deviant act

11. This is an illegal act which is punishable by law

13. This is a functionalist argument for the causes of crime

14. An example of formal social control

15. crime is caused by groups or individuals that feel as though they are unfairly disadvantaged compared with similar people

Down

1. His work is used to explain the biological causes for criminal activity

2. Labelling is often linked to ...

3. This approach focuses on the genetic causes of crime

5. Behaviour which does not conform to a society's rules and norms

7. A typical crime of the bourgeoisie

8. Which social institution do Marxists believe reinforce the idea that the proletariat are deviant?

9. This subcultural group are often blamed for crime

12. this approach argue that criminal and deviant behaviour is caused by personality traits