

Chapter 10: Memory

Across

2. a component system in the structure of memory that serves as a relatively permanent storage repository for information

7. subsystem of long-term memory

9. type of test; an explicit memory test that requires a person to produce a required response with few, if any, available cues or aids

10. subsystem of long-term memory

11. type of test; an explicit memory test that requires a person to produce a required response with few, if any, available cues or aids

12. knowledge that enables a person to know how to do a skill; typically non-verbalizable

13. type of interference; a cause of forgetting because of activity occurring during the retention interval

Down

1. type of test; an explicit memory test that requires a person to produce a required response with few, if any, available cues or aids

3. knowledge about what to do in a situation; typically verbalizable

4. a functional system in the structure of memory that operates to temporarily store and use recently presented information

5. subsystem of long-term memory

6. a memory process involving the transformation of information to be remembered into a form that can be stored in memory

8. a memory process involving the search through long-term memory for information needed to perform the task at hand
