

Name: _____ Date: _____

THINGS FALL APART

Across

3. A white man sent to rule over Umuofia, he and his court messengers are corrupt officials who abuse the natives.
 4. Okonkwo's second wife
 7. Shells used for currency
 8. A village destroyed by white men because they killed one white man.
 9. A personal god that determines a man's fate and guides his fortune, almost an embodiment of luck.
 11. Men who disguise themselves as the ancestral spirits of the village and judge disputes among the villages.
 13. Okonkwo's daughter who understands her father better than her other siblings.

15. The name of the village where Okonkwo and his family live.
 16. Okonkwo's friend who takes care of his home for him while he is in exile.
 17. The priestess of Agbala, the Oracle of the Hills and Caves.
Down
 1. A missionary in Okonkwo's native village who tries to make the relationship between the Christians and the villagers as stable as possible despite the fanaticism of some of his converts.
 2. An Ibo convert to Christianity who acts as a missionary and translator for the first missionaries who come to Mbanta while Okonkwo and his family are in exile there.

5. A boy of a neighbouring village who was chosen as a sacrifice to avoid warfare with Umuofia.
 6. A religious zealot hungry for conflict who unmasked a sacred egwugwu at a public ceremony and enraged Okonkwo's village.
 10. He was a notorious slacker and debtor.
 12. A ritual refreshment for hosts and guests.
 14. Okonkwo's oldest son, child of Okonkwo's eldest wife.